other products to Europe are increasing, and substantial relief to the exchange market will be brought about through that cause. It also is considered distrable that our imports should be cut down as far as possible, so that consumers may depend on the home supply to a greater extent than they have been doing in recent years. Present conditions in the exchange market tend to bring about the desired result, as foreign exportants are not willing to ship without knowing how or when they may be paid, and American importers are no leas unwilling to bring in supplies without being sure of their ability to make payments without sacrifice of reputation or profits. It is considered probable that a large.

It is intimated that both the aliles and the Germans are bracing themselves for a great blow. Attention is, therefore, focusing more tensely than ever in Washington and New York upon the advices from the front.

"The New street curb market reflects the tension to a certain extent, and there is evidence of manipulation in the trading, accompanied by all sorts of rumors, with irregularity and jumps in prices. As near as we can learn, the hints conveyed from London are to the effect that the British navy is becoming active coincident with the Zeppelin rumors relative to an attack on the English kapital. Everces of the allies are also conventrate.
